"Back-The-Attack Day" Successful

"Back-the-Attack Sales Day" in Gettysburg last Friday boosted war bond and stamp sales by approximately $12,000, the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce announced today as Mrs. Robert P. Snyder, secretary, neared completion of the tabulation of reports from the 48 participating business places.

Under the plan which operated Friday, the cooperating business places used the day's receipts to buy war bonds and stamps to help boost the county's total sales in the current Fourth War Loan drive.

Mares Sherman, president of the Chamber, said he was pleased with the manner in which the local businessmen cooperated in the plan which was similar to that used on one day last September during the Third War Loan campaign.

4-DAY DRIVE IN COUNTY FOR WASTE PAPER

Completion of plans for Adams county's all-out wastepaper salvage campaign was announced today by Dr. Eugene Elgin, chairman of the drive.

The four days, February 19, 20, 21 and 22, have been set as the period in which organizations and individual citizens of the county will collect wastepaper for the country's war effort.

"Twenty-three county fire companies with a total membership of 2,300; school teachers, Boy Scouts and 4-H clubs will spearhead the salvage campaign, scheduled to end at midnight, February 22, Washington's birthday. Persons having waste paper will notify the above or see that it is taken to the local fire companies in their respective districts. If there are any tin cans available, please turn them over to the local fire companies.

Dr. Elgin in a statement declared that war conditions at present make it vitally important that all wastepaper be salvaged to meet the requirements of the armed forces.

Need Is Great
"Once we get our fighting men overseas it takes tons of supplies per month per man to keep them there," said Dr. Elgin. "This requires huge quantities of containers and packaging material made from the wastepaper we save in our homes, apartments, offices and places of business.

"It is up to us to see that industry gets an adequate supply of this important commodity which protects the food, drugs, fuel and ammunition sent to our fighting forces."

All kinds of paper will be accepted in the drive, but the different types should be kept together. Put all old newspapers and that type of paper in one bundle, wrapping paper and brown manila paper in another, old pasteboard boxes in another, books in another and magazines in another. Tie them securely in bundles."

A 17-year-old Gettysburg R. D. youth, who escaped January 14 from the Philadelphia Penitentiary, was in the Adams county jail today awaiting assignment to the White Hall school near Harrisburg after being captured Tuesday afternoon about 7 o'clock near the corner of South Washington and Breckenridge streets.

The youth was sent to the protective in November.

Chief of Police Glenn Guise and Privates Harold Trout and Robert Dietrich of the local state police were driving south on South Washington street Tuesday afternoon to visit a friend of the youth's to ask whether he had been seen about town since his escape.

As they passed a store near Breckenridge street they saw the youth's car parked outside. As they entered the building the youngster ran out the back way and then tried to double back around the store to reach his car. On the way the officers nabbed him.

Curious to determine why he headed for his car when the vehicle was blocked by the police car, the police investigated the car and found a revolver inside the machine.

The youth was arrested on a series of charges of "borrowing" cars in Gettysburg from where the car owners had parked them and then driving until the gasoline was exhausted.

MINISTERIAL MEETING
The Adams County Ministerial association will meet Monday noon at St. John's Lutheran church, Littlestown. The Rev. H. S. Ecker, president, will lead a discussion on "The Pastor and the Home-Folks of Those in the National Service."

Store Closed all day Thursday, February 10th, to prepare for Spring Showing Saturday, Virginia M. Myers.

LEADERS OF R. C. PREPARE PLANS FOR BIG DRIVE

District chairmen of the Red Cross War Fund campaign, which will start March 1, met Tuesday evening in the Red Cross room in the court house to complete organization plans for the drive.

Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars, chairman of the county chapter; Miss Margaret McMillan, executive secretary, and Mrs. Earl J. Bowen, chairman of the staff assistants, recited the amazing record of accomplishments and services of the county chapter during the past year.

Of the $26,500 quota to be raised during the campaign, $8,500 has been allocated for use of the local chapter. The district chairmen were told by Mrs. Lewars that the cost of raising the more than $21,000 subscribed in the war fund campaign last year was less than $50.

R. C. In Demand

Stress was laid on the greater need for Red Cross service this year than last, it being explained that the many more millions of men in the armed services and particularly the constantly increasing number going overseas requires constant expansion of Red Cross service in the four corners of the globe wherever American forces are serving.

The necessity that subscriptions of $1.00 be substantially increased was emphasized by several of the district chairmen who stated "it is obvious with the need being greater that the large volume of small subscriptions must be increased if the drive is to succeed."

The district chairmen are going to retain, with only the few exceptions, occasioned by removals and deaths, "the same organization of canvassers who were so successful and who performed so loyally in the last drive."

Some of the chairmen plan to inaugurate a canvass of their respective communities before the drive opens. They said they anticipated many contributors will come to them voluntarily "so great is the pride in the performance of the county chapter."

The consensus of opinion was that the quota will be raised before the end of March and that Adams, as the first in the list of counties in the state, will be the first county to go over the top.

The draft board office said it will not announce the names of other men accepted from the group of 101 sent to Harrisburg for physical examination last week until they are called for duty.

The club voted to renew its membership in the State Federation of Sportsmen's clubs and set March 10 as the date of the next meeting. About 25 members attended the session.

Need $315,963 In Bond Sales To Individuals

Adams county made a slight gain in its sale of war bonds to individuals through February 7 (Monday) according to revised figures address to Edmund W. Thomas, chairman of the County War Finance Committee by the Federal Reserve District.

Through a transposition of figures inadvertently made in Tuesday's edition of The Gettysburg Times, it was announced that the county had to sell $592,100 worth of war bonds to individuals to meet that quota. It should have read that the county had sold $592,100 worth of those bonds to individuals.

Today's figures show a slight increase. The new figures include sales reported to the Federal Reserve District through Monday.

Adams counties have purchased $608,600 worth of bonds to individuals and have to buy $315,963 worth of these types of bonds to individuals to meet that quota.

Of the total sales of bonds to individuals $239,800 represents sales of "E" bonds. The balance represents all other types of bonds sold to individuals.

SHIPMENTS OF RATION TOKENS RECEIVED HERE

Thirty-two thousand of the new OPA red and blue tokens have arrived at the Gettysburg National bank and the First National bank of Gettysburg, it was announced today. Several thousand additional tokens will arrive in the near future for the banks.

The distribution to the banks of the stocks of tokens is part of a nation-wide distribution and represent part of the largest shipping undertaking of its kind to date, a representative of the local railway express office said today. The tokens are handled in the same manner as money and are guarded by an armed guard.

To Be Used Soon

Forwarded from a southwestern Ohio city where they are being manufactured, the total output of over 2,000,000,000 tokens is being sent out of the factory in trunks and hampers at a rate of from 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 a day. The shipping will continue until late in February. Most Adams county banks have received at least a portion of the tokens allotted them. The tokens are sent 2,000 to a box.

The tokens are made of fiber and have a one-point value. They will be used to make "change" for the (Please Turn to Page 2)

Neither Mud, Frost, Water Nor Cold Stays Ann From Her Duty

Neither mud, nor frost, nor water, nor cold shall stay Adams county's youngest female air raid warden from the swift pursuit of her duty.

Chubby little Ann McIlhenry, not quite three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh C. McIlhenry, Harrisburg road, lived up to the finest and highest tradition of the FARWC (Female Air Raid Warden Corps) Tuesday afternoon and is likely to receive the highest decoration for her achievement.

While playing "Air Raid Alarms" with her five-year-old brother, Hugh, little Ann was "on duty" in a congested area. Suddenly the sirens sounded an air raid (Hugh being the chief siren blower).

Ann dashed for her post across the field. Half way across she struck a muddy spot. Dashing at full speed Ann raced through the mud when suddenly she became stuck . . . both shoes, rubbers and stockings were off . . . pulled off by the sticky mud as Ann raced on. But Ann couldn't proceed . . . barefooted, she too was mired. Screams brought the "Chief Air Raid Warden" and her mother to the rescue.

Little Hugh sounded the "All Clear" as mother carried Ann to the warmth of the McIlhenry home where she was cleaned, cheered and warmed . . . with hot milk . . . and given a hot foot-bath.

Ann is none the worse for her experience today.

REV. SMITH IS SPEAKER FOR LEAGUE MEET

In keeping with the theme "Tribute to the Unconquerables" which was used for the program of the February meeting of the Woman's League of Gettysburg college, Tuesday afternoon, at Christ Lutheran church, Mrs. Harold J. Pegg read Joseph Auslander's "Letter to the Norwegians," one of the letters to each of the occupied nations of Europe which were recently published.

Special musical numbers were included on the program. The Rev. Nevin Smith, of Hanover, the guest speaker, talked on the attitude of civilians in time of war. He stressed the importance of going on from day to day with courage and faith so that each person may contribute his best in the war effort and to the morale of the nation. He also emphasized the importance of a spirit of willingness in giving up things to which the country has been accustomed in order that they may be shared with others in need.

Mrs. Thomas L. Cline, president of the organization, presided at the meeting and introduced those appearing on the program.

List New Members

The meeting was opened with the singing of the national anthem. Mrs. Lester O. Johnson conducted the devotional period. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Earl Bowen.

In the absence of Mrs. Raymond F. Sheely, who served as chairman of the Street Fair arrangements, Mrs. John B. Zinn reported that $293.20 had been cleared. It was announced that the next project of the organization would be the presentation of a play, the date for which will be announced later.

Miss Anna Cairns, as treasurer, reported a balance of $144.22.

The following names were added to the membership roll of the league: Mrs. Robert M. Hunt, Mrs. H. M. Cater, Mrs. C. A. Deitch, Mrs. Kermit Deardorff, Mrs. John E. Sanderson, Miss Ruth Koser, Mrs. Poole and Miss Bess Hoke.

TOWNSHIPS GET STATE FUNDS

Adams county townships will receive $11,992.38 from the state motor license fund as their quarterly payment for the upkeep of roads, it was announced today. The payment is due March 1.

The amount given Adams county's townships is part of $875,000 from the motor license fund to be sent to second-class townships throughout the state March 1. The 1941 session of the General Assembly appropriated $8,500,000 to be paid the townships for the years 1942 and 1943. The amount however has been reduced to $7,000,000 for the years 1944 and 1945. The reduction, it was explained, is due to the curtailed construction program and reduced amount of revenue in the motor license fund. The appropriation to each township is allocated for construction and maintenance of roads under the supervision of the township supervisors. The remaining payments this year will be made in June, September and December.

The amount allocated to Franklin county was announced as $12,371.72 and to York county, $30,010.25.

Compare Figures

The men checked the results of last year's production as compared with the forecasts they had made early last year. They found that their estimates tallied with the final production figures and that national figures bore the same relation throughout the county, it was stated.

One of the jobs of the local and county committeemen is to determine the production plans of the farmers in their areas and then to base an estimate on what will be produced. Those figures, the men were told, are used as the basis of the War Food Administration plans for the coming year. They were also told their job is to explain to the farmers in their communities the outlook for obtaining critical materials, and assist them in securing what materials they need. The community committeemen are elected by the farmers in their locality at annual elections.

LEADERS OF R. C. PREPARE PLANS FOR BIG DRIVE

District chairmen of the Red Cross War Fund campaign, which will start March 1, met Tuesday evening in the Red Cross room in the court house to complete organization plans for the drive.

Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars, chairman of the county chapter; Miss Margaret McMillan, executive secretary, and Mrs. Earl J. Bowen, chairman of the staff assistants, recited the amazing record of accomplishments and services of the county chapter during the past year.

Of the $26,500 quota to be raised during the campaign, $8,500 has been allocated for use of the local chapter. The district chairmen were told by Mrs. Lewars that the cost of raising the more than $21,000 subscribed in the war fund campaign last year was less than $50.

R. C. In Demand

Stress was laid on the greater need for Red Cross service this year than last, it being explained that the many more millions of men in the armed services and particularly the constantly increasing number going overseas requires constant expansion of Red Cross service in the four corners of the globe wherever American forces are serving.

The necessity that subscriptions of $1.00 be substantially increased was emphasized by several of the district chairmen who stated "it is obvious with the need being greater that the large volume of small subscriptions must be increased if the drive is to succeed."

The district chairmen are going to retain, with only the few exceptions, occasioned by removals and deaths, "the same organization of canvassers who were so successful and who performed so loyally in the last drive."

Same Organization

Some of the chairmen plan to inaugurate a canvass of their respective communities before the drive opens. They said they anticipated many contributors will come to them voluntarily "so great is the pride in the performance of the county chapter."

The consensus of opinion was that the quota will be raised before the end of March and that Adams, as the first in the list of counties in the state, will be the first county to go over the top.

Need $315,963 In Bond Sales To Individuals

Adams county made a slight gain in its sale of war bonds to individuals through February 7 (Monday) according to revised figures address to Edmund W. Thomas, chairman of the County War Finance Committee by the Federal Reserve District.

Through a transposition of figures inadvertently made in Tuesday's edition of The Gettysburg Times, it was announced that the county had to sell $592,100 worth of war bonds to individuals to meet that quota. It should have read that the county had sold $592,100 worth of those bonds to individuals.

Today's figures show a slight increase. The new figures include sales reported to the Federal Reserve District through Monday.

Adams countians have purchased $608,600 worth of bonds to individuals and have to buy $315,963 worth of those types of bonds to individuals to meet that quota.

Of the total sales of bonds to individuals $239,800 represents sales of "E" bonds. The balance represents all other types of bonds sold to individuals.

SHIPMENTS OF RATION TOKENS RECEIVED HERE

Thirty-two thousand of the new OPA red and blue tokens have arrived at the Gettysburg National bank and the First National bank of Gettysburg, it was announced today. Several thousand additional tokens will arrive in the near future for the banks.

The tokens are handled in the same manner as money and are guarded by an armed guard.

Neither Mud, Frost, Water Nor Cold Stays Ann From Her Duty

Neither mud, nor frost, nor water, nor cold shall stay Adams county's youngest female air raid warden from the swift pursuit of her duty.

Chubby little Ann McIlhenny, not-quite-three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh C. McIlhenny, Harrisburg road, lived up to the finest and highest tradition of the FARWC (Female Air Raid Warden Corps) Tuesday afternoon and is likely to receive the highest decoration for her achievement.

While playing "Air Raid Alarms" with her five-year-old brother, Hugh, little Ann was "on duty" in a congested area. Suddenly the sirens sounded an air raid (Hugh being the chief siren blower). Ann dashed for her post across the field. Half way across she struck a muddy spot. Dashing at full speed Ann raced through the mud when suddenly she became stuck. . . . both shoes, rubbers and stockings were off . . . pulled off by the sticky mud as Ann raced on. But Ann couldn't proceed . . . barefooted, she too was mired. Screams brought the "Chief Air Raid Warden" and her mother to the rescue.

Little Hugh sounded the "All Clear" as mother carried Ann to the warmth of the McIlhenny home where she was cleaned, cheered and warmed . . . with hot milk . . . and given a hot foot-bath.

Ann is none the worse for her experience today.

He stressed the importance of going on from day to day with courage and faith so that each person may contribute his best in the war effort and to the morale of the nation. TOWNSHIPS GET STATE FUNDS

Adams county townships will receive $11,992.28 from the state motor license fund as their quarterly payment for the upkeep of roads, it was announced today. The payment is due March 1.

The amount given Adams county's townships is part of $875,000 from the motor license fund to be sent to second-class townships throughout the state March 1. The 1941 session of the General Assembly appropriated $8,500,000 to be paid to the townships for the years 1942 and 1943. The amount however has been reduced to $7,000,000 for the years 1944 and 1945. The reduction, it was explained, is due to the curtailed construction program and reduced amount of revenue in the motor license fund. The appropriation to each township is allocated for construction and maintenance of roads under the supervision of the township supervisors. The remaining payments this year will be made in June, September and December.

The amount allocated to Franklin county was announced as $12,371.72 and to York county, $30,010.25.

Assault Planes Are Bolstering Rome Bridgehead

By RICHARD McMURRAY
Associated Press War Editor

Allied planes destroyed the greater part of Cisterna, main German stronghold in the siege lines around the Rome bridgehead, into which the Nazis said officially today they had advanced "several miles."

Headquarters at Algiers gave no confirmation of the German communique claim and spoke only of enemy patrols probing positions below Rome. Dispatches told of increasing German pressure and intense artillery fire against the American and British troops in the pocket, last reported 14 miles long and eight miles deep.

Fifth Army Front Moves Forward

Some advances were claimed on the main Fifth Army front, 60 miles below the Rome sector, where the Americans had occupied a fourth of the ruins of Cassino and climbed at one time to within 75 yards of the Benedictine Abbey on Mt. Cassino. An attack in full strength was launched against the cliffs surrounding the dominating monastery before dawn yesterday. The Germans had been holding fast there for six days in a violent battle.

A German report likened the waters off the supply port of Nettuno below Rome to a "ship graveyard" as a result of air attacks.

"Active patrolling" was reported in the Rome bridgehead, stuck like a Tobruk in the German flank. Headquarters said the Allies further consolidated their positions and that German shelling increased.

DIRECT SUBSIDY APPROVAL VOTED BY 150 FARMERS

Subsidies, shortages and the draft were among the subjects discussed by 150 Agricultural Adjustment Administration committeemen from five counties at the closing session of the two-day convention at the court house here Tuesday.

The men voted unanimously in favor of direct subsidies, such as that given on milk, to help the farmers through present war-time conditions.

While the men expressed themselves as being opposed to subsidies as a general thing, they asserted that under present war-time conditions and to prevent inflation they were in favor of direct subsidies to the farmers to meet increased costs while keeping down the costs of the food products to the ultimate consumer.

Compare Figures

The men checked the results of last year's production as compared with the forecasts they had made early last year. They found that their estimates tallied with the final production figures and that national figures bore the same relation throughout the country, it was stated.

One of the jobs of the local and county committeemen is to determine the production plans of the farmers in their areas and then to base an estimate on what will be produced. Those figures, the men were told, are used as the basis of the War Food Administration plans for the coming year. They were also told their job is to explain to the farmers in their communities the outlook for obtaining critical materials, and assist them in securing what materials they need. The community committeemen are elected by the farmers in their locality at annual elections.

TOO SOON TO JUDGE ALLIED MOVE IN ITALY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)
London newspapers are looking with jaundiced eyes at the Anzio-Nettuno beachhead operations below Rome, and suggest the Allies may have been too cautious about forcing ahead when they first landed and there was virtually no opposition.

Time may, or may not, justify this harsh criticism, but it strikes me we lack facts to warrant such sweeping conclusions as yet. The London Daily Herald, which is among those disappointed, seems to furnish its own excellent answer when it says: "We do not yet know enough to criticize or account for the state of affairs."

May Outnumber Us

We may get a better view of things after the big battle which seems to be boiling up at the beachhead. That's the thing of immediate importance—and it may be a very nasty affair with heavy casualties.

Hitler indicates determination to annihilate our beachhead force as part of his delaying action in Italy. The great Marshal Rommel, one of the master tacticians of the war, reportedly has been rushed to the scene. The Nazis have had time to move heavy reinforcements from the north, and have even brought in a contingent of Hitler's Elite Guard, or Schutzstaffel, the black-uniformed troops which are the "old reliable" of the dread Gestapo. They are brutal and trained in sadistic murder.

The enemy may be superior numerically, and they have the advantage of positions on high ground overlooking the beachhead. Hitler also has flung into the air more warplanes than the Nazis have displayed in this theatre in a long time. German artillery is hammering the Allies.

Anxious to Hold Italy

Latest reports say our positions in the beachhead have been further consolidated and bristled with men and guns. This beachhead is thirty miles wide and eight miles deep. With Allied superiority in the air, and a Allied fleet off-shore to back up the Allied land forces, we have a right to expect our men to win through. But they haven't got the battle in their pockets yet.

As regards the London criticism, it should be pointed out first that indications are this amphibious operation was intended mainly as a diversionary venture. It wasn't, for example, expected to capture Rome, or anything of that sort. Presumably it was hoped that it would draw German troops away from the main battle line to the south and thereby enable the Allied armies to get ahead with their offensive, which has been badly delayed by weather.

Well, the landing didn't work out that way, but it did force the Nazis to rush troops from the north to the beachhead. That in itself shows how anxious Hitler is to hang onto Italy as long as possible, if for no other reason than to prevent the Allies from using the peninsula as a base for invading the Balkans across the Adriatic.

Menace Nazi Rear

Why didn't the Allies drive deep into the higher ground away from the sea-front in the early stages of the invasion? There may be several answers to that, but it seems to me that one of them certainly is that an attacking force can't advance without supplies—and it's mighty hard to get equipment and other supplies, especially the heavy stuff, ashore from barges onto a beach.

Why, the Allies haven't had a harbor of pin-head worth for that whole beachhead. They took a chance. That alone would seem to demonstrate that our high command didn't intend the operation to be more than diversionary.

Once the battle of the beachhead is over, however, the Allies presumably will move inland and get astride the railway and the Appian Way upon which the Hitlerite battle-line to the south mainly depends for supplies. Thus the amphibious force will be a great menace to the German rear.

ROCKET GAS SHELL SEEN

Stockholm, Feb. 9 (AP)—Another alleged German "secret weapon"—a rocket shell covering the target with a blanket of heavy gas ignited by an incendiary bomb—was described Tuesday in a Zurich dispatch to the Dagens Nyheter.

The dispatch, quoting a technical expert living in Germany, said the shell could be fired from a rocket gun at great distance and the gas, inflammable but not poisonous, would be touched off by a fire-bomb dropped by plane.

The story said the weapon had been used on a limited scale against the Russians at Sevastopol, but gave no indication of its effectiveness.

The same expert described a compressed air rocket gun supposedly capable of firing 1,000-pound shells containing booster charges exploding at certain altitude to give the projectile additional range. He said the Nazis intended to use them to bombard London and other English towns.

Ceiling Prices On Onion Sets Listed

Ceiling prices on onion set sales during the latter half of February were also announced today by the District OPA office. These new prices are based on a flexible regulation which supercedes the original "freeze" order based on the highest prices charged between the period of February 10-15, 1943.

Under the new schedule which covers onion set deliveries made between February 16 and 28, in the Harrisburg area, the base price from shipping point is fixed at $4.76 for 32-lb. bushel bags. The gross cost to retailers for "sets" sold in quantities of 50-100 bags is $6.31, while bags purchased in quantities between 101-250 will cost the retailer, $5.99.

An additional charge has been allowed by OPA for transportation from the seller's warehouse to the receiving point of the buyer. The ceiling price to consumers, who make small purchases, is fixed at 40c per pound.

FIGHT LOOMS ON VICE PRESIDENT

Washington, Feb. 9 (AP)—An early move to seek convention pledges for House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas emphasized today the unusual attention that politicians are directing toward the Democratic vice presidential nomination this year.

With President Roosevelt still turning aside fourth term inquiries, some practical politicians are conceding him the nomination on the first ballot and working to get their choice installed as his running mate, with an eye to the future.

One high Democratic official said there is no doubt in his mind that—if the President runs again—this year's vice presidential candidate will have a head start on everyone else in the 1948 race for the top nomination.

Besides that, this politician observed there always is a possibility that if Mr. Roosevelt is elected for a fourth term and the war ends, he might resign to head a bipartisan delegation to the peace conference.

With that in mind, some Rayburn supporters in Congress are bringing pressure to bear in the south to get pre-convention pledges from delegates that they will support the speaker through which might become the biggest battle of the Chicago meeting.

Before the war the city of Kharkov, Russia, had 135 schools for a population of 925,000 persons.

TOO SOON TO JUDGE ALLIED MOVE IN ITALY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Associated Press War Analyst)

London newspapers are looking with jaundiced eyes at the Anzio-Nettuno beachhead operations below Rome, and suggest the Allies may have been too cautious about forging ahead when they first landed and there was virtually no opposition.

Time may, or may not, justify this harsh criticism, but it strikes me we lack facts to warrant such sweeping conclusions as yet. The London Daily Herald, which is among those disappointed, seems to furnish its own excellent answer when it says: "We do not yet know enough to criticize or account for the state of affairs."

May Outnumber Us

We may get a better view of things after the big battle which seems to be boiling up at the beachhead. That's the thing of immediate importance—and it may be a very nasty affair, with heavy casualties.

Hitler indicates determination to annihilate our beachhead force as part of his delaying action in Italy. The great Marshal Rommel, one of the master tacticians of the war, reportedly has been rushed to the scene. The Nazis have had time to move heavy reinforcements from the north, and have even brought in a contingent of Hitler's Elite Guard, or Schutzstaffel, the black-uniformed troops which are the "old reliables" of the dread Gestapo. They are brutal and trained in sadistic murder.

The enemy may be superior numerically, and they have the advantage of positions on high ground overlooking the beachhead. Hitler also has flung into the air more warplanes than the Nazis have displayed in this theatre in a long time. German artillery is hammering the Allies.

Anxious to Hold Italy

Latest reports say our positions in the beachhead have been further consolidated and bristle with men and guns. This beachhead is thirty miles wide and eight miles deep. With Allied superiority in the air, and a Naval fleet off-shore, to back up the Allied land forces, we have a right to expect our men to win through. But they haven't got the battle in their pockets yet.

As regards the London criticism, it should be pointed out first that indications are this amphibious operation was intended mainly as a diversionary venture. It wasn't, for example, expected to capture Rome, or anything of that sort. Presumably it was hoped that it would draw German troops away from the main battle line to the south and thereby enable the Allied armies to get ahead with their offensive, which has been badly delayed by weather.

Well, the landing didn't work out that way, but it did force the Nazis to rush troops from the north to the beachhead. That in itself shows how anxious Hitler is to hang onto Italy as long as possible, if for no other reason than to prevent the Allies from using the peninsula as a base for invading the Balkans across the Adriatic.

Menace Nazi Rear

Why didn't the Allies drive deep into the higher ground away from the sea-front in the early stages of the invasion? There may be several answers to that, but it seems to me that one of them certainly is that an attacking force can't advance without supplies—and it's mighty hard to get equipment and other supplies, especially the heavy stuff, ashore from barges onto a beach.

Why, the Allies haven't had a harbor of pin-head worth for that whole beachhead. They took a chance. That alone would seem to demonstrate that our high command didn't intend the operation to be more than diversionary.

Once the battle of the beachhead is over, however, the Allies presumably will move inland and get astride the railway and the Apennian Way upon which the Hitlerite battle-line to the south mainly depends for supplies. Thus the amphibious force will be a great menace to the German rear.

FIGHT LOOMS ON VICE PRESIDENT

Washington, Feb. 9 (AP)—An early move to seek convention pledges for House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas emphasized today the unusual attention that politicians are directing toward the Democratic vice presidential nomination this year.

With President Roosevelt still turning aside fourth term inquiries, some practical politicians are conceding him the nomination on the first ballot and working to get their choice installed as his running mate, with an eye to the future.

One high Democratic official said there is no doubt in his mind that—if the President runs again—this year's vice presidential candidate will have a head start on everyone else in the 1948 race for the top nomination.

Besides that, this politician observed there always is a possibility that if Mr. Roosevelt is elected for a fourth term and the war ends, he might resign to head a bipartisan delegation to the peace conference.

With that in mind, some Rayburn supporters in Congress are bringing pressure to bear in the south to get pre-convention pledges from delegates that they will support the speaker through which might become the biggest battle of the Chicago meeting.

Before the war the city of Kharkov, Russia, had 135 schools for a population of 925,000 persons.

The Grace Yeiser Missionary society of the Trinity Lutheran church held a covered dish luncheon at the home of Mrs. Nelson Shaules Monday evening. The program following the luncheon consisted of a review of the book "For All Life," by Dr. and Mrs. Wiser, which was given by several members of the society.

Pvt. Glenn Baker, who is stationed at a camp in Virginia, spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Edward Baker.

Miss Malissa Smelser, who has been ill for some time, is reported to be improved.

WELFARE GROUP OPENS SERIES

A representative group of about 25 persons enrolled Monday evening for the discussion series being conducted each Monday evening this month by the Adams County Welfare committee in cooperation with the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania. The general theme for the series is "How to Understand People."

Mrs. Lorna Sylvester, psychiatric social worker for the Tri-County Child Guidance center, at Harrisburg, was the discussion leader as the series opened Monday evening at the YWCA building. Her topic was "What It Means to Grow Up."

Next Monday evening Miss Charlotte Parrish, representative of the State Department of Welfare at Harrisburg, will be the leader on the topic "Do Children Need a Home." Each of the meetings is to be held at the "Y" building at 8 p. m., on succeeding Monday evenings. The series is open to all persons interested. A registration fee of $1.50 is asked.

Paul A. Kinsey is president of the County Welfare committee which is conducting the series and Mrs. R. S. Saby is the program chairman. Miss Mary Hobson Jones, field representative of the Public Charities Association from Philadelphia, attended Monday's session.

County-Wide Action To Control European Corn Borer Urged At Meeting

County-wide action to wipe out the European corn borer in Adams county was urged by J. O. Pepper, extension entomologist from Penn State college, Tuesday afternoon at the 28th annual meeting of the Adams county Agricultural Extension association at the high school here.

Pointing out that the infestation in the county increased by three times during the last year, he recounted the experience of the cattle-corn growing sections around Ottawa, Canada, where about 1925 failure to take steps in time to eradicate the corn borer wiped out the entire corn crop for two years in succession and forced the abandonment of the cattle business. Government control measures which forced the Ottawa farmers to take community action in fighting the pest allowed resumption of the cattle and corn industry in the area.

"The same thing can happen here if the borer infestation continues during the next few years at the rate of increase shown from 1942 to 1943," he warned the 140 farmers attending the session.

Requires Community Effort

Infestation counts in 1943 showed that 19 stalks out of every 100 were infested with the borer and there were an average of three borers on every stalk. In 1942 a similar count showed an average of one borer per stalk. The 1943 infestation was more than 30,000 borers to every acre of corn.

"No one thing can completely remove the corn borer from Adams county," Mr. Pepper stated. "We must learn to live with it and to keep it down to such levels that we can continue to grow corn profitably. The infestation must be kept at a minimum."

"And we must be practical in this control. No one man can wipe out the corn borer in his field and expect to keep it clean if his neighbor refuses to fight the borer. The borer is a moth and can fly for some distance. Unless everyone in the county—victoria gardener as well as farmer—cooperates to wipe out the menace the pest will continue to increase."

May 1 Is Deadline

"We can dust sweet corn where we can obtain at least two cents an ear for the corn and find it profitable. In field corn the only measure we can take is to follow good clean farming practices."

"I feel that in Adams county clean cultivation practices will take care of the problem. Destroy absolutely all the field corn and sweet corn stalks before May 1. After that date it will be too late, for the moths will have emerged and will be depositing their eggs on new corn. The more of the old borers we destroy the less moths there will be to infest the new corn. And with 30,000 moths coming from one acre of corn which has not been cleaned up a lot of damage can be done."

"The corn stalks should be cut or broken down now so that they can be plowed under from four to six inches deep when the ground thaws out. Where plowing is impractical, such as in victory gardens, I suggest that the stalks be chopped off at ground level and the stalks then raked up and burned."

Nicotene Spray

"The corn borer is threatening both the field and sweet corn in Adams county and it is also threatening the potato and tomato crops. Last year some infestation was found in both tomatoes and potatoes."

"I suggest that in general hybrid corns be planted this coming spring. Even with clean cultivation all of the borers will not be destroyed. Hybrid corn in general withstands corn borer damage much better than open pollination varieties and as a result a better crop will be insured."

"For those with sweet corn who can get more than 2 cents an ear for the corn the field can be dusted with fixed nicotine to destroy about 75 per cent of new crop of corn borer that can be expected next year. The fixed nicotine should be used at a four per cent concentration on early sweet corn. The first application should be made when the corn borer eggs begin to hatch, usually when the 'sweet corn' is about 12 to 15 inches high. Four applications of the dust should be made at five-day intervals and about 40 pounds of dust should be used to the acre."

Jap Beetle Control

"The dust should be blown down in the whorl which should be covered as should the main stalk. If it is impossible to buy fixed nicotine, BL-155, which is 14 per cent fixed nicotine, can be obtained. It should be used one part to three parts of a carrier such as talc, clay, gypsum or the like, but lime should not be used as the carrier."

Mr. Pepper also spoke on methods of controlling Japanese beetle, which also appears to be increasing in this area. He urged use of a spray made of 20 pounds of hydrated lime, three pounds aluminum sulphate and 100 gallons of water applied between June 25 and July 1. The spray repels the insect rather than killing it, he said.

County Farm Agent M. T. Hartman and Assistant Agent Russell F. Mollenauer stressed the importance of using improved farm management in "making the best of what we have" during the course of a review of farm activities in the last year.

Contour Farming Benefits

There were only a few new erosion prevention demonstrations started during the last year, they reported. Considerable work was done however in expanding the demonstration started in previous years. "This would indicate," Mr. Hartman said, "that those men on whose farms some erosion control practices had been adopted were sufficiently well pleased with the results and wished it extended to include their whole farms. A number of men who had planted one block of orchard on the contour planted additional blocks on the contour this year. Further proof that farmers are finding the contour system of farming both practical and worthwhile is the fact that none of those who started one or more fields on the contour has gone back to the old conventional method."

"During last summer, which was a very dry one, a number of men were of the positive opinion that their corn suffered considerably less from the drought as a result of their contour rows than did their neighbors where the fields were not plowed to contour. Fruit growers reported that their contoured orchards showed better growth than similarly aged trees in non-contoured sections."

Fruit Pest Report

"At the present time there are 35 erosion demonstrations in the county. Some of these are on farm crop land and some are orchards. It is reasonably safe to assume that the war and the pressing need for every available pound of food has temporarily reduced the number of new erosion demonstrations. Changing a field from the conventional system to the contour system for the first year or two requires some additional work and in some cases causes a temporary reduction in one or more crops."

Apple insect injury records of 1943 kept by Mr. Hartman showed an average injury of about 26 per cent in the orchards where the records were kept. Mr. Hartman disclosed. The damage ranged from 1.5 per cent to 94 per cent in 23 orchards where the count was made during the summer and fall. The greatest damage was done by the codling moth. In the most badly injured orchard 84 per cent of the damage was done by the codling moth worm, two per cent by curculio and 18 per cent by scale. Curculio was found in three orchards, leaf roller in three and scale in four. There was codling moth damage in all of the 23 orchards. Only one per cent damage from leaf roller was found in the three orchards where it appeared.

Manpower Shortage

One orchard with 56 per cent injury received 22 per cent from codling moth sting and 34 per cent from the codling moth worm. Some orchards showed a greater damage from sting than from worm although the worm seemed to do the majority of the injury in most of the orchards. In one orchard, however, where 3 per cent of the fruit was stung only 11 per cent injury from the worm appeared.

Last winter was very severe for bees, with 800 pounds of package bees needed to restore hives. Excessive dry weather after the wet spring was responsible for a very poor honey flow, with many colonies not even being self supporting.

Mr. Mollenauer and Mr. Hartman said the manpower shortage caused curtailment of production of wood

How long you'll toil today,
And will you straightaway walk or turn,

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

WHO ARE WE?
We are only important and useful as we DO. Who are we to pass inconsiderate judgment upon someone else? Who among us has ever been able to accurately picture the perfect picture of another human beings heart?

And yet, sad to relate, we are forever passing judgment upon people about whom we know next to nothing. It is so much better to speak kindly of all at all times, and let things rest there. The rebound of feeling is excellent for the soul!

I often think of an incident told by the late Sir W. Robertson Nicoll, the famous editor of the British Weekly, of a critic who wrote a scathing criticism of an author's latest book, an author who previously had written many meritorious books. In this case, however, the critic did not know that the author was then dying—but lived to read the criticism. Nicoll remarked that he always made it a point to give encouragement to all writers, whether known or not. From all that I have read, the record bears that statement out.

George H. Doran, the famous publisher, tells in his book "Chronicles of Barabbas" many an interesting tale. He writes of publishing the first books of Mary Webb, but after meeting her in London and being taken to task for not selling more of them, broke off all publishing of her books—thus being deprived of the honor of having published her next book, "Precious Bane," her masterpiece! He states that had he known her background of poverty and illness, and her remarkable courage, it would have made all the difference in the world to him.

Who are we to pre-suppose, or pre-judge? What do we know about the secret hunger, and perhaps pain, that is gnawing at the heart of that silent friend, neighbor, or stranger? We were born individuals, free to think, to feel, and to aspire. We are each an entity with God-given motives all our own, which we alone are able to translate.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Book Browning."

EARTH SPLITS AND CHILD, 3, DISAPPEARS

Pittston, Pa., Feb. 9 (AP)—The earth split open and swallowed a three-year-old child here yesterday, and grim miners still dug today in search of her body.

The child, Julie Ann Fulmer, daughter of a Navy enlisted man, was buried alive in a cave-in over an abandoned anthracite mine.

Her aunt, Mrs. Marie Mitchell, on the verge of hysteria, told this story of the tragedy:

"She and Julie Ann and the child's five-year-old brother, David, were walking along the sidewalk in a residential street after shopping at a grocery store.

"Just Disappeared"
Mrs. Mitchell peeled a tangerine and handed it to Julie Ann, and the child fell back a few steps.

Then the earth cracked.
"I leaped back, pulling Julie with one hand and knocking David back with the other," Mrs. Mitchell said. "But the rush of earth tore Julie from me. There was nothing I could do to save her. She just disappeared."

The tangerine, thrown from Julie's hand, rolled down the sidewalk—the only evidence that the girl had stood there a second before.

40-Foot Hole
Virtually all of this mining city of 18,000, is undermined by coal workings. During the last several years there have been many cave-ins, wrecking many homes and buildings. The cave-ins, or subsidences, occur when totting mine timbers suddenly give away.

After Julie Ann disappeared, miners, attracted by Mrs. Mitchell's screams, scanned the yawning hole—40 feet deep and 10 feet across—and began digging. The work went forward under flood lights during the night while thousands watched.

A second "squeeze," or subsidence, occurred last night and rescue crews installed protective cribbing. They worked in relays, suspended in the deep hole by ropes, and passing up the dirt bucket by bucket.

MORE COOPERATIVE
Philadelphia, Feb. 9 (AP)—Japanese have been more cooperative than other potentially dangerous aliens interned in 19 camps in the United States under the immigration department's jurisdiction, Earl G. Harrison, U. S. Commissioner of Immigration, said last night.

State Chamber Hits Freight Rate Change

Washington, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce sought congressional support today in its opposition to proposed uniform freight rate legislation which one organization representative said "would revolutionize the entire rate fabric of the United States and bring disaster to Pennsylvania commerce and industry."

The legislation, sponsored by southern interests which contend present rates discriminate against them, recently was backed by the southern governors conference.

Charles S. Donley of Pittsburgh, chairman of the traffic committee of the commerce group, told Pennsylvania's congressional delegation at a dinner last night "these bills for uniform rates would increase coal and ore rates."

ARTHUR JAMES BACK IN COURT

Harrisburg, Feb. 9 (AP)—Former Governor Arthur H. James returned today to the State Superior court he left in 1939 to become Pennsylvania's chief executive and at the same time was slated as the Republican organization candidate for the full 10-year term in the April primary.

Governor Martin named his predecessor to the $18,000 a year post yesterday to fill out the unexpired term of Judge Joseph Stadfield, of Pittsburgh, who died several months ago.

James' return to public office came a little more than a year after he turned over the governorship to Martin in 1943. He was first elected to the Superior Court in 1932 but relinquished the office immediately before taking his oath as Governor in 1939, when he succeeded former Governor George H. Earle, a Democrat.

"I have offered Arthur James a post on the Superior Court and he has accepted," Martin told reporters in making the announcement. "I'll be for him for the nomination."

James, who is 60 and has been practicing law in his home town of Plymouth, Luzerne county, since he left the governor's office, declared there last night "I will be proud to serve the people of Pennsylvania in the Superior Court."

Exceptionally dry weather during the summer and fall season aided greatly in the reduction of fruit and vegetable diseases. The excessive drought during the summer and early fall, cold, wet and windy weather during the spring made the year difficult for the farmers, delayed the normal progress in soil preparation and planting and greatly reduced the fruit crop, the year's review stated. A large portion of the county was severely affected by excessive drought which caused partial or complete failure of the corn crop, vegetable canning crops and greatly reduced the peach and apple crops. Dairy and livestock farmers were faced with special feed problems. During the year special emphasis was placed on the

HEALTH QUIZ

Do you have poor digestion? ☐ YES ☐ NO
Do you feel headachy after eating? ☐ YES ☐ NO
Do you get sour or upset easily? ☐ YES ☐ NO
Do you feel tired—listless? ☐ YES ☐ NO

Now everyone knows that to get the good out of the food you eat—you must digest it properly. But what most people don't know is that Nature must produce about two pints of the digestive juice—liver bile—each day to help digest your food. If Nature fails—your food may remain undigested—lie sour and heavy in your digestive tract.

Thus, it is simple to see that one way to aid digestion is to increase the flow of liver bile. Now, Carter's Little Liver Pills start to increase this flow quickly for thousands—often in as little as thirty minutes. When bile flow increases, your digestion may improve. And, soon you're on the road to feeling better—which is what you're after.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's aid digestion after Nature's own order, when taken as directed. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills today—at any drugstore—only 25¢. You will be glad you did.

State Chamber Hits
Freight Rate ChangeWashington, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce sought congressional support today in its opposition to proposed uniform freight rate legislation which one organization representative said "would revolutionize the entire rate fabric of the United States and bring disaster to Pennsylvania commerce and industry."The legislation, sponsored by southern interests which contend present rates discriminate against them, recently was backed by the southern governors conference.Charles S. Donley of Pittsburgh, chairman of the traffic committee of the commerce group, told Pennsylvania's congressional delegation at a dinner last night "these bills for uniform rates would increase coal and ore rates."

NO RESPECT

Philadelphia, Feb. 9 (AP)—U. S.
Deputy Marshal Harry Cox is really convinced now that thieves have no proper respect for the law. His own overcoat, he says, was stolen from an unlocked cell in the marshal's cellroom.

WHEAT FOR LAYERS

Hens will lay well if wheat is used as the only grain in the scratch feed, say poultry specialists of the Pennsylvania State college. If enough vitamin A is supplied in other feeds, ground wheat can replace the scarce corn in the mash.

ARTHUR JAMES
BACK IN COURTHarrisburg, Feb. 9 (AP)—Former Governor Arthur H. James returned today to the State Superior court he left in 1939 to become Pennsylvania's chief executive and at the same time was slated as the Republican organization candidate for the full 10-year term in the April primary.Governor Martin named his predecessor to the $18,000 a year post yesterday to fill out the unexpired term of Judge Joseph Stadfield, of Pittsburgh, who died several months ago.James' return to public office came a little more than a year after he turned over the governorship to Martin in 1943. He was first elected to the Superior Court in 1932 but relinquished the office immediately before taking his oath as Governor in 1939, when he succeeded former Governor George H. Earle, a Democrat."I have offered Arthur James a post on the Superior Court and he has accepted," Martin told reporters in making the announcement.
"I'll be for him for the nomination."James, who is 60 and has been practicing law in his home town of Plymouth, Luzerne county, since he
there last night "I will be proud to serve the people of Pennsylvania in the Superior Court."

Exceptionally dry weather during the summer and fall season aided greatly in the reduction of fruit and drought during the summer and shipments of the oil seed meals have already been made here. A feed committee including Harrison F. Snyder, chairman, Glenn Slaybaugh, John Harlaub, Harold Herr, Leroy Zeigler, Edgar Weaner and J. Price Oyler has been functioning since the beginning of the year. Those farmers needing the protein feeds apply to the AAA office on North Washington street and the committee approves the applications whenever there is a carload lot. The first cars have already arrived. Four additional carloads were approved at a meeting Tuesday evening.

Last year the oil seed meals were not available to farmers and small mixers, it was stated, but under a new order from the War Foods Administration 20 per cent of the meals have been set aside for the small mixers and farmers.

To Get Machinery

Mark Shuman, technical advisor to the state AAA committee, reported that the farm machinery situation is getting less critical. Most scarce at present are harvest machines and tractors. The farmers can expect three times as many tractors to be released up to June 30 as were allowed last year, Mr. Shuman said. Adams county has already had 66 tractors allocated to it and will probably have its quota increased by 23 within the next month or so.

Only drawback to the improved situation in machinery is that not all of the newly released equipment will be available in time for the spring work.

Captain Merkel of the State Selective headquarters outlined the position of the farmer in relation to the draft.

A two hour discussion on "Auxiliary Farm Services" as a basis for draft deferment followed.

M. E. Mickey, priority analyst, said that the most critical material now is lumber and that the government is urging steel as a substitute.

Larkin Favored Over Costantino

New York, Feb. 9 (AP)—Tippy Larkin, who thought he beat Bobby Ruffin, and Lulu Costantino, who thought he beat Beau Jack, clash tonight in a 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden that may produce another contender in the lightweight division.

Landis that their "sixth sense" told regarded as a better puncher than Lulu, ruled a 2 to 1 favorite in the overnight line, but the price is likely to drop as ringtime approaches. Costantino is acknowledged a master boxer and has demonstrated he can take a punch.

FLIGHT FROM LOVE

Chapter 16

"Combat duty!" She stood staring at him as he turned, swung open the door and turned back to her. She had read the words so often—had accepted them with distant understanding. But now when he said them they had a real and terrible clarity.

"No, Dave!" she gasped. He dropped her keys into her hand and laughed gently. "Just a part of the game, Julie. It was grand seeing you tonight."

Blindly she stepped into the hall. She felt cold suddenly, and began to tremble. "Yes, such fun," she murmured. She looked up at him desperately. "I thought—I'd be seeing you now," she said. "I thought—you'd be here for a while."

"We never know," he answered lightly. She clutched his arm. "You'll write me, Dave?"

He hesitated. "I'll try," the promise sounded reluctant. Julie's lips trembled. Her hand tightened on his arm. "I don't want you to go," she whispered fiercely.

He gave a gently scoffing laugh. "You'll be so busy with your career, you'll never know I'm gone. I'm proud of you, Julie. I'll be wishing you the best of luck. You know that. Goodbye now."

He bent to kiss her quickly. But Julie clung to him for one long moment. She didn't see him go. She stood there in the dark hall, her eyes still shut, crying.

Kay came running out to meet her and lead her into the apartment. In jerky sobs she told her of Dave's going.

Kay got Julie into her bed, and tucked the electric hot pad at her feet. "Now you go to sleep," she ordered. "You're in no condition to rivet tonight."

Dimly Julie heard Jack's car when it came, and its snoring rumble as it started off again. Then the phone rang.

"Hello," her voice sounded watery. "Did I get you up?" The deep, round tones were Marek's.

"Yes—but it's all right." "Are you ill?" Marek's concern was sharp.

"No, I—I just had some bad news, that's all. I'll be all right."

"Is there anything I can do, Julie?"

"Nothing, thanks." Julie's throat felt dry and stiff.

"How about dinner tomorrow night? There's some things I'd like to talk over with you."

"That would be fine," Julie managed.

"Better go to bed now and get some sleep," Marek said. "I'll stop by for you about six-thirty tomorrow evening."

Julie went back to the bedroom feeling dazed and sat in the low chair by the open window. Far back in the hills a rancher's dog barked, the wind from the sea was rattling the palm trees side of the house with dry, papery sounds. In her mind she could hear the humming roar of the machinery at the plant. Suddenly it dawned on her that sleep was impossible. The thing she wanted most now was to be back in the plant to work—work—night until she couldn't think—couldn't bear those words—combat duty—ringing in her mind.

She glanced at her wrist watch as she snapped on the bathroom light. It had only been thirty minutes since Kay and Jack had left. It was a twenty minute walk to the plant. If she hurried she would only have lost an hour. She threw some cold water on her tear-stained cheeks. She slipped out of her slacks and into her overalls.

Her flat-heeled shoes beat a staccato note as she walked rapidly along the darkened sidewalk on Camillo Street.

The sprawling buildings on Empire loomed ahead. They too, were swathed in total darkness. The guard at gate 23 snapped on his flashlight long enough to examine her badge then let her pass. She hurriedly found her card—in the metal rack and punched it in the timeclock.

Her fingers flew at her work as the night wore on and she was welding her rivet gun after the bell had sounded for the thirty minute rest period. Her teammate shouted for her to stop.

"Hey!" she said. "You don't get overtime for working through the rest period, you know!"

Julie lifted her head and smiled a little sheepishly.

"I'm in a fog tonight," she said. "I didn't even hear the bell."

The girls left their work and joined the surging rivulets of workers who were pressing toward the company cafeteria. They each got a coke and a sandwich and found a table in the corner.

Julie felt a frantic urge to get back to her rig. She had found she could lose herself in the absorption of her work.

Under the curtain of blue light the factory roared on again. Julie worked madly until four o'clock. It was strange how almost on the stroke of four she had looked at the clock on the wall. She thought of David. He would just be leaving. A group of jumped-up figures climbing into transport planes, heading for an unknown destination. She pulled herself back to her work.

"Julie!"

Julie jerked the rivet gun back from the metal guttily at the lead girl's sharp tone. She didn't have to be told this time. She had been day dreaming again. Probably her rivets were crooked as a dog's hind leg. Well, she deserved this called-down.

But the lead girl was looking at her, not her work. "You're pale," she accused her. "You don't look fit to be working tonight. I think you'd better go down to the dispensary and have the nurse look you over."

Relief flooded through Julie. "I'm fine," she said firmly. "I feel much better when I'm working."

The lead girl hesitated. "You're sure?" She gave Julie one of her

NEW WHISKEY RATION PERIOD

Harrisburg, Feb. 9 (AP)—A new whiskey rationing period starts Monday with prospects of the same limit—fifth of a gallon—for another six weeks in store for Pennsylvanians.

"Temporary plans call for extending the rationing system on the same basis it is now," declared Chairman Frederick T. Gelder of the State Liquor Control Board.

He said no definite plans have been approved but added in an interview that the next period would run from Feb. 14 "for about six weeks" and that patrons would be limited to the same amount as in the present Jan. 3 to Feb. 12 term.

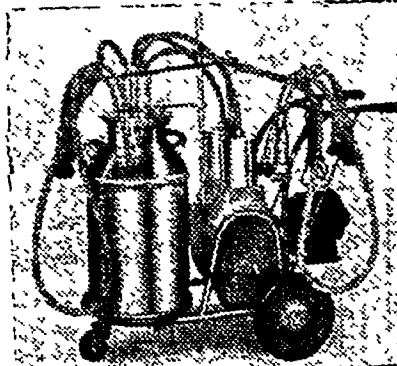

Board figures for the first three weeks of this period show whiskey sales are running almost 23 per cent behind the first half of the original period which extended from Nov. 15 to Dec. 31.

A total of 826,732 persons regis-sudden, rare smiles. "We don't want you folding up on us just when the army inspector had stopped ordering re-does on your rivets." "Really? Then I can't stop."

shipments of the oil seed meals have already been made here. A feed committee including Harrison F. Snyder, chairman, Glenn Slaybaugh, John Hartlaub, Harold Herr, Leroy Zeigler, Edgar Weaver and J. Price Oyler has been functioning since the beginning of the year. Those farmers needing the protein feeds apply to the AAA office on North Washington street and the committee approves the applications whenever there is a carload lot. The first cars have already arrived. Four additional carloads were approved at a meeting Tuesday evening.

Last year the oil seed meals were not available to farmers and small mixers, it was stated, but under a new order from the War Foods Administration 20 per cent of the meals have been set aside for the small mixers and farmers.

To Get Machinery

Mark Shuman, technical advisor to the state AAA committee, reported that the farm machinery situation is getting less critical. Most scarce at present are harvest machines and tractors. The farmers can expect three times as many tractors to be released up to June 30 as were allowed last year, Mr. Shuman said. Adams county has already had 66 tractors allocated to it and will probably have its quota increased by 23 within the next month or so.

Only drawback to the improved situation in machinery is that not all of the newly released equipment will be available in time for the spring work.

Captain Merkel of the State Selective headquarters outlined the position of the farmer in relation to the draft.

A two hour discussion on "Auxiliary Farm Services" as a basis for draft deferment followed.

M. E. Mickey, priority analyst, said that the most critical material now is lumber and that the government is urging steel as a substitute.

Larkin Favored Over Costantino

New York, Feb. 9 (AP)—Tippy Larkin, who thought he beat Bobby Ruffin, and Lulu Costantino, who thought he beat Beau Jack, clash tonight in a 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden that may produce another contender in the lightweight division.

Landis that their "sixth sense" told regarded as a better puncher than Lulu, ruled a 2 to 1 favorite in the overnight line, but the price is likely to drop as ringtime approaches. Costantino is acknowledged a master boxer and has demonstrated he can take a punch.

FLIGHT FROM LOVE

Chapter 16

"Combat duty!"

She stood staring at him as he turned, swung open the door and turned back to her. She had read the words so often—had accepted them with distant understanding. But now when he said them they had a real and terrible clarity.

"No, Dave!" she gasped.

He dropped her keys into her hand and laughed gently. "Just a part of the game, Julie. It was grand seeing you tonight."

Blindly she stepped into the hall. She felt cold suddenly, and began to tremble. "Yes, such fun," she murmured. She looked up at him desperately. "I thought—I'd be seeing you now," she said. "I thought—you'd be here for a while."

"We never know," he answered lightly.

She clutched his arm. "You'll write me, Dave?"

He hesitated. "I'll try," the promise sounded reluctant.

Julie's lips trembled. Her hand tightened on his arm. "I don't want you to go," she whispered fiercely.

He gave a gently scoffing laugh. "You'll be so busy with your career, you'll never know I'm gone. I'm proud of you, Julie. I'll be wishing you the best of luck. You know that. Goodbye now."

He bent to kiss her quickly. But Julie clung to him for one long moment. She didn't see him go. She stood there in the dark hall, her eyes still shut, crying.

Kay came running out to meet her and lead her into the apartment. In jerky sobs she told her of Dave's going.

Kay got Julie into her bed, and tucked the electric hot pad at her feet. "Now you go to sleep," she ordered. "You're in no condition to rivet tonight."

Dimly Julie heard Jack's car when it came, and its snorting rumble as it started off again. Then the phone rang.

"Hello," her voice sounded watery. "Did I get you up?" The deep, round tones were Mark's.

"Yes—but it's all right," Julie said. "Are you ill?" Mark's concern was sharp.

"No, I—I just had some bad news, that's all. I'll be all right."

"Is there anything I can do, Julie?"

"Nothing, thanks," Julie's throat felt dry and stiff.

"How about dinner tomorrow night? There's some things I'd like to talk over with you."

"That would be fine," Julie managed.

"Better go to bed now and get some sleep," Mark said. "I'll stop by for you about six-thirty tomorrow evening."

Julie went back to the bedroom feeling dazed and sat in the low chair by the open window. Far back in the hills a rancher's dog barked, the wind from the sea was rattling the palm trees side of the house with dry, papery sounds. In her mind she could hear the humming roar of the machinery at the plant. Suddenly it dawned on her that sleep was impossible. The thing she wanted most now was to be back in the plant to work—work to night until she couldn't think—couldn't bear those words—combat duty—ringing in her mind.

She glanced at her wrist watch as she snapped on the bathroom light. It had only been thirty minutes since Kay and Jack had left. It was a twenty minute walk to the plant. If she hurried she would only have lost an hour. She threw some cold water on her tear-stained cheeks. She slipped out of her slacks and into her overalls.

Her flat-heeled shoes beat a staccato note as she walked rapidly along the darkened sidewalk on Camillo Street.

The sprawling buildings on Empire loomed ahead. They too, were swathed in total darkness. The guard at gate 23 snapped on his flashlight long enough to examine her badge then let her pass. She hurriedly found her card in the metal rack and punched it in the timeclock.

Her fingers flew at her work as the night wore on and she was welding her rivet gun after the bell had sounded for the thirty minute rest period. Her teammate shouted for her to stop.

"Hey!" she said. "You don't get overtime for working through the rest period, you know!"

Julie lifted her head and smiled a little sheepishly.

"I'm in a fog tonight," she said. "I didn't even hear the bell."

The girls left their work and joined the surging rivulets of workers who were pressing toward the company cafeteria. They each got a coke and a sandwich and found a table in the corner.

Julie felt a frantic urge to get back to her jig. She had found she could lose herself in the absorption of her work.

Under the curtain of blue light the factory roared on again. Julie worked madly until four o'clock. It was strange how almost on the stroke of four she had looked at the clock on the wall. She thought of David. He would just be leaving. A group of jumped-up figures climbing into transport planes, heading for an unknown destination. She pulled herself back to her work.

"Julie!"

Julie jerked the rivet gun back from the metal guilily at the lead girl's sharp tone. She didn't have to be told this time. She had been daydreaming again. Probably her rivets were crooked as a dog's hind leg. Well, she deserved this call-down.

But the lead girl was looking at her, not her work. "You're pale," she accused her. "You don't look fit to be working tonight. I think you'd better go down to the dispensary and have the nurse look you over."

Relief flooded through Julie. "I'm fine," she said firmly. "I feel much better when I'm working."

The lead girl hesitated. "You're sure?" She gave Julie one of her

NEW WHISKEY RATION PERIOD

Harrisburg, Feb. 9 (AP)—A new whiskey rationing period starts Monday with prospects of the same limit—fifth of a gallon—for another six weeks in store for Pennsylvanians.

"Temporary plans call for extending the rationing system on the same basis it is now," declared Chairman Frederick T. Gelder of the State Liquor Control Board.

He said no definite plans have been approved but added in an interview that the next period would run from Feb. 14 "for about six weeks" and that patrons would be limited to the same amount as in the present Jan. 3 to Feb. 12 term.

Board figures for the first three weeks of this period show whiskey sales are running almost 25 per cent behind the first half of the original period which extended from Nov. 15 to Dec. 31.

A total of 826,732 persons registered for purchases in three weeks of this period—256,926 the first week, 266,091 the second and 273,725 the third—as compared with 1,067,526 persons the first three weeks of the last year, 303,895 the second and 277,998 the third.

The board said the 826,732 present registrations include 137,188 persons who did not buy whiskey in the previous period.

RADIO PROGRAMS

New York, Feb. 9 (AP)—The 60-year old concert artist, Fritz Kreisler, has decided to go on the radio, breaking a microphone silence maintained for his violin since broadcasting started. The amount to be paid for each of his five appearances was not revealed except that it would run well into four figures.

Kreisler's appearances will be in the sponsored guest artist series conducted on NBC Monday nights by Donald Voorhes, the first next summer and the other three at later intervals.
